SUSTAINABILITY

We are aware that all our corporate activities are effecting the environment in some way. Hence, we strive after balancing our economical objectives with our sustainability goals. And sustainability means to us more than just “green labels” and meeting minimum requirements. In order to take all relevant aspects into consideration we took up the UN Sustainable Development Goals and selected those on which our activities may have an effect.

Various Goals – One Mission

Even if we can only contribute to a limited degree to the achievement of the – for us relevant – UN Sustainable Development Goals No. 3, 5, 6, 8, 9, 12 and 13, we will try the best possible and won't hide behind any labels. We want to relentlessly improve, as we know that there is no finish line...

WE are responsible

It is important to us not only to know the processes, but also to steer them ourselves. This is the only way we can continuously develop the sustainable standards in the long term and also personally accompany and ensure them. With this in mind, when choosing our production facility, we chose what we believe to be the most advanced and innovative production facility in the sports industry and concentrated our production there.

Human factor (Goals 3, 5, 8)

Despite computer-controlled systems, the human factor is still the decisive factor in the production of functional clothing - from the skilled craftsmanship of the seamstresses to the programmer on the printing system. For this reason, fair pay and flawless working conditions are a basic requirement for us.

State-of-the-art technology (Goals 6, 9, 12, 13)

State-of-the-art systems are not only important for efficiency and precision, but also for clean production without polluting the environment. For example, the new screen printing system with completely filtered wastewater that is reuseable.

Material Selection (Goals 12, 13)

In addition to the functional properties, the ecological aspects are decisive for us when choosing our materials. We are increasingly trying to use natural, renewable fibers from certified organic cultivation. If we use polyester or nylon fibers, they are mostly recycled materials.

Durable products (Goals 12, 13)

Better a really good bike short that you can enjoy for a long time ... because the most environmentally friendly bike short is not a new bike short. That is why we try our best in this regard - by the way not only with bike shorts.

A male mountain biker wearing a blue helmet, a maroon long-sleeved shirt, and olive green shorts is riding a black mountain bike on a dirt trail. He is leaning forward, and the bike is angled as if taking a turn. The background shows a forest with tall trees and some purple flowers. The right side of the image has a light beige overlay containing text.

The Trailstar Concept

Zimtstern Trailstar® has been a legendary bike short for more than a decade, and similar to the evolution of mountain bikes, the Trailstar Shorts have been updated once in a while. Like the geometry of modern MTBs, the Trailstar has become longer and sleeker. And, now it is time for another evolutionary step, or better: a revolution.

Our riders asked, if it was possible to make a pant and a short that is even more lightweight, more flexible, more minimalistic, more comfortable, while still keeping certain protective properties...

So, we searched for new materials and design solutions in order to come up with a new Trailstar Concept:

- >> Super Lightweight
- >> Super Agile
- >> Super Comfortable
- >> Super Performant
